50X1-HUM

1. In January 1952, the East German planning authorities were called upon by the Council of Ministers to revise the 1952 plans for the distribution of gasoline and diesel oil in East Germany, in order to allow for modifications in the allotments to the Russian authorities and the state reserve. These modifications involved a reduction in the allotment of diesel oil to the Russian authorities, an increase in the allocation of gasoline to the same authorities, and an increased allotment of both diesel and gasoline to the state reserve.
2. In the revised plans, the reduction in the allotment to the Soviet authorities was calculated to offset the increased allotment to the state reserve, while the increased requirements in gasoline were obtained by raising the proportion of gasoline produced during distillation (at the expense of light oils) and by reducing the allotments to Land governments.
3. The revised planning figures, as prepared by the State Administration of Material Procurement, are attached in Appendix A. Details for the previous year (1951) are added for purposes of comparison. Appendices B and C give the distribution of gasoline and diesel oil respectively for 1952 and (as far as is known) for 1953.

APPENDIX A

The Supply and Distribution of Gasoline in East Germany during 1951 and 1952 (In metric tons)

Year	Stocks on 1 January	Supply		TOTAL	Export	Distribution		Balance
		SAG	VEB			East German Allotments	Russian authorities and state reserves
1951	2,317	494,300	13,444	510,061	95,000	322,245	91,499	1317
1952	28,000	552,160	11,340	591,500	110,000	360,490	113,010	8000
(1953)					(85,000)	(389,830)

The Supply and Distribution of Diesel Oil in East Germany in 1951 and 1952

Year	Stocks on 1 January	Supply		TOTAL	Export	Distribution		Balance
		SAG	VEB			East German Allotments	Russian authorities and state reserves
1951	4,166	407,930	23,653	435,749	135,000	259,365	41,384	Nil <sup>1</sup>
1952	14,000	500,000	35,000	549,000	115,000	352,830	77,170	4,000
(1953)					(100,000)	(456,107)

1. ☐ Comment. The difference between the end of year figures for 1951 and the stock figure for 1 January 1952 is because of the incomplete inventories of unused stocks; the latter figure is, therefore, an official estimate.

50X1-HUM

1. The presence of a dash (-) in the column indicates that no allotment was made to the quota holder in question. A blank indicates that no information is available.
2. The figure of 75,000 tons for the allotment to the SAGs is marked "before the hand over". This would imply that a smaller allotment will be designated and the balance redistributed.
3. Not further identified.

1. The presence of a dash (-) in the above figures indicates that no allotment was made to the quota holder in question. A blank indicates that no information is available.
2. This large allotment appears to be entirely for the fishing industry.
3. This quantity is made up as follows:

Central omnibus service	12,500
Shipping (internal)	6,000
Railways	8,700
Shipping (sea-going)	3,824

4. Comment. Not further identified.
